Rebels attack Salvadorans 20 confirmed dead

SANTA CRUZ LOMA, El Salvador (AP) — Dusk slipped over the huts of this mountain village one by one as the people sang hymns and buried their dead, victims of a surprise attack by leftist rebels dressed as soldiers.

It was the second funeral Tuesday evening, and while the villagers sang they could hear the sound of shovelfuls of earth dropping rhythmically onto the coffins of those buried after the first service.

Civil defense guards usually are not as well trained or armed as regular soldiers, although some efforts have been made recently to upgrade their training and organization.

The residents of Santa Cruz Loma said they thought the guerrillas were government troops until they saw rebel initials on some of the uniforms. The villagers said they shot first.

"They shouted not to shoot, that they were on our side," said Jesus Valles, the local Civil Defense Force commander.

"They did it to confuse us and we stopped shooting. We thought they were part of an anti-insurgency unit. When they got closer, we saw that they were not soldiers."

Residents said the rebels went from house to house, taking supposed Civil Defense volunteers out and shooting them or cutting their throats. They said the guerrillas went to houses without hesitation, as if they had been chosen in advance.

"They shouted not to shoot, that they were on our side. . . . They did it to confuse us and we stopped shooting."

"I gave my blessing to all of them, that was all I could do."

Village priest

Several people were missing and presumed kidnapped.

Of the 20 confirmed dead, only seven were identified as defense force volunteers. Villagers said most of the others were killed by mortar shells lobbed into the string of huts that line a crude, dusty road.

The village is administered by Santiago Nonualco, a larger town about four miles down the mountain. That is where the truck took the bodies to be put into coffins, stopping to pick up other dead from the attack as it went.

In front of the church in Santiago Nonualco, children climbed the back of the truck and watched curiously as adults went about their grim business.

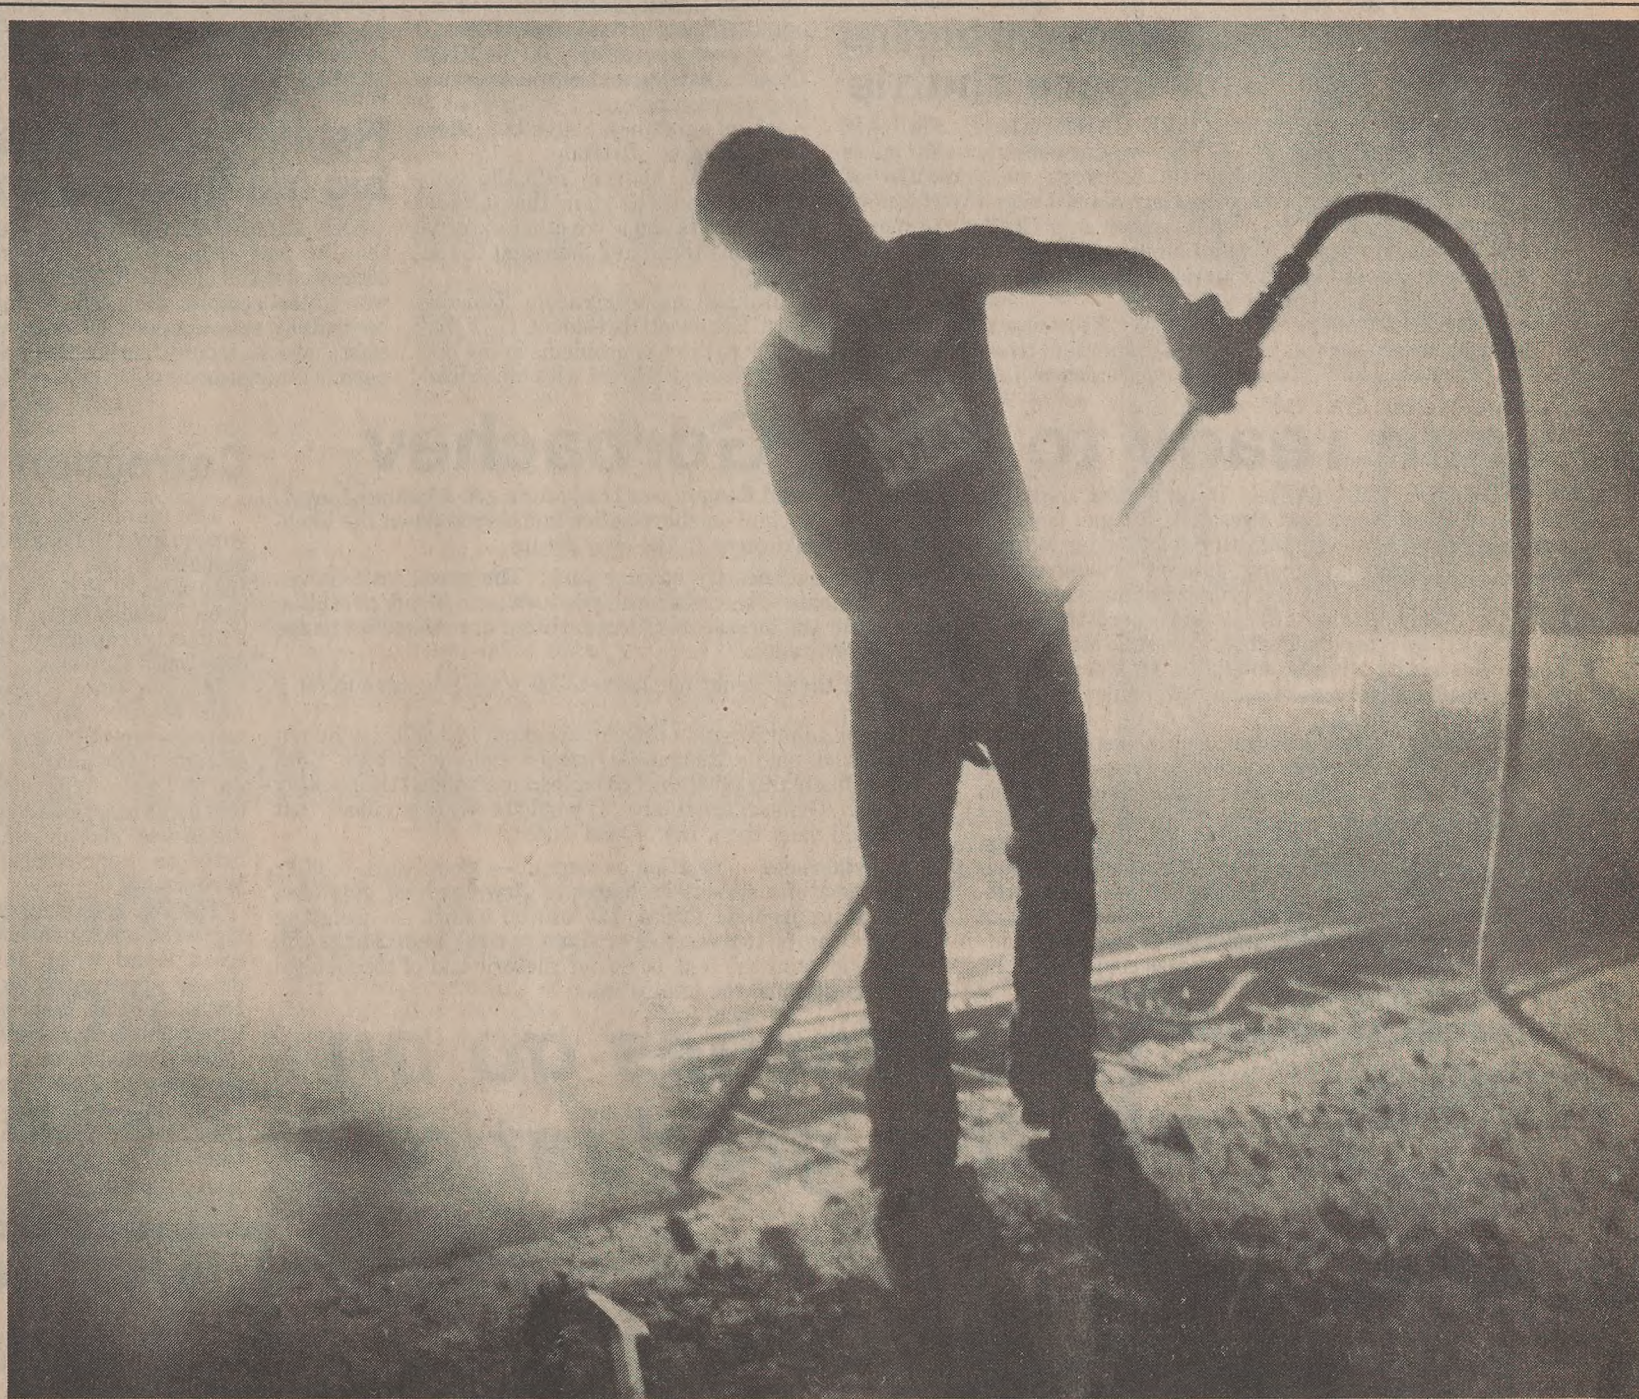

"Who's the one in the green shirt?" called out a man with a clipboard.

The body was identified, checked off, placed in a simple wooden coffin with a sugar sack lining it. Volunteers put the lid on the coffin, placed it on a pickup truck that would return it to Santa Cruz Loma and went to the next one.

When the supply of coffins ran low, word was sent to nearby Zacatecoluca to bring more.

"I gave my blessing to all of them, that was all I could do," said a brown-robed priest who identified himself only as Father Octavio and said he had served the village for 35 years.

"I know of at least 20 dead and there is talk of more, but I don't know any more about them," he said.

Judge strikes down law restricting cable shows

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge on Wednesday struck a judgment striking down as unconstitutional a 1983 Utah law, never enforced, that restricted "indecent" cable television programming.

Senior U.S. District Judge Aldon J. Anderson said in a 50-page ruling that the Utah Cable Television Programming Decency Act is "unconstitutionally overbroad and vague, and void on its face."

Anderson granted a summary judgment sought by attorneys for Community Television of Utah and four other cable companies who opposed the law. He ordered the plaintiffs to "prepare a judgment reflecting the court's ruling and permanently enjoining the defendants' from enforcing the act."

"Cable television is a powerful form of communication. Used properly, it can edify and inspire as well as entertain. Used improperly, it can seriously damage the quality of life that we have and reduce public tastes to their lowest common denominator," Anderson wrote.

The judge said he was following Supreme Court precedent by delineating "an area in which private individuals, particularly parents, must assume an important responsibility for maintaining a decent society."

The state attorney general's office earlier had indicated it would appeal an unfavorable decision.

The cable groups filed a lawsuit against the act shortly after it was approved following weeks of emotional debate in the 1983 Legislature, which overrode the veto of then-Gov. Scott Matheson.

However, Attorney General David Wilkinson, whose office helped draft the measure, declined to enforce it until legal challenges were resolved.

The statute defined as indecent any "visual or verbal depiction, display, representation, dissemination or verbal description" of sexual intercourse, a human sexual or excretory organ or function, the display of certain body parts or masturbation.

Attorney Bryan McDougal, representing Community TV, had said, "If we were to lose, it would rewrite the past 10 years of First Amendment laws." On Wednesday he said the judge had decided in favor of the plaintiffs on virtually every issue.

"The bottom line was, he agreed with previous decisions on the issue that it's the subscribers, and not the state, who have the power to regulate what they see," McDougal said.

In a 1983 attorney general's opinion, Wilkinson said the Utah act would permit the airing of "indecent programs" between midnight and 7 a.m., even though that was not spelled out in the statute.

Anderson's ruling was the second major blow in five months to befall backers of cable regulation in Utah. By a 61-39 percent margin, the predominately LDS electorate rejected a cable television decency measure placed on last November's ballot.

Supporters had billed it as a contingency measure in case Anderson ruled as he did Wednesday. Both sides considered it more restrictive than the Legislature's law because it would have mandated criminal instead of civil penalties.

The hierarchy of the LDS Church, which frequently decries "the evil of pornography," remained officially neutral on the ballot measure, which drew opposition from more than 100,000 Utah households that subscribe to cable television.

Jim Bunnell, president of the Utah Cable Television Operators Association and of Community Television of Utah, said he expected further legislative attempts to pass a constitutionally acceptable law to regulate cable television.

But, he added, "Sooner or later they will have to realize they can't put out a law that will accomplish what they want to do."

Marion Bloomquist of Ogden, president-elect of the Utah Association of Women, which supported the initiative and the law, said she hoped Anderson's ruling would be appealed by the attorney general.

Doctors still refuse to identify 4th artificial heart recipient

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Doctors said Wednesday the fourth man to receive a permanent artificial heart was doing "surprisingly well" three days after the implant.

But the patient's doctors refused to identify him or comment on reports that he was 53-year-old Leif Stenberg, a defendant in a tax evasion trial who came to be known in Sweden's tabloids as "Mr. X."

"For the time being we are very content with his condition," said Dr. Bjarne K.H. Semb of Stockholm's Karolinska Hospital. Semb led the 12-member team that on Sunday performed the first permanent artificial heart implant outside the United States.

The patient, identified by the hospital only as a Swede in his mid-50s, was "mostly resting," according to Semb. He said the patient was talking and taking liquids and light food and characterized him as recuperating "surprisingly well."

Reports about the identity of the patient overshadowed the medical aspects of the case. And there was also speculation that a recipient of an artificial heart might be considered legally dead under Swedish law and thus immune from prosecution.

Judge Birgitta Engvall, who is to hear the case against Stenberg, refused to comment. But chief prosecutor Magnus

"From now on, please show some common consideration towards this run-down human being."

Sjoberg said "the operation changes nothing in the judicial sense."

Semb would not be drawn into the issue at a Wednesday news conference. "We had an agreement (to protect the patient's anonymity)," he explained, then asked reporters: "From now on, please show some common consideration towards this run-down human being."

Dr. Robert Jarvik, inventor of the metal and plastic Jarvik-7 heart implanted in the patient, said he was "very pleased" with the operation. Jarvik, who observed the surgery, told a news conference, "The patient is in very good spirits and we've learned a lot here."

Jarvik said the Symbion Corp., which manufactures the artificial heart he invented, donated the $15,500 Jarvik-7 and the equipment used at Karolinska in the operation.

As part owner of the company, Jarvik said he has turned down requests for mechanical hearts from some U.S. hospitals when he felt they lacked experience for an artificial heart program.

Jarvik, 38, stressed that artificial heart implantation was still "an experimental program."

"It may have a very bright future; it may have no future at all. We'll just have to wait and see," he said.

Jarvik said he expected hospitals in the United States and elsewhere to make more artificial heart implants during 1985. He said the next probably will be at Humana Hospital in Louisville, Ky., where Dr. William C. DeVries performed the world's second and third implants.

DeVries was at the University of Utah clinic when he made the first permanent artificial heart implant, on Barney Clark in December 1982. Clark died 112 days after the operation.

Ron Lafferty's jury selection scheduled to start April 25th

By LESLIE M. GANDOLA
Senior Reporter

Jury selection for the trial of accused killer Ron Lafferty will begin April 25 in Utah County's 4th District Court, barring any unforeseen delays, said Dan Price, court administrator.

"Our plans are to go forward with the trial unless something unforeseen happens before that. . . . If council files an interlocutory appeal, the ball is in the Supreme Court's court," Price said.

On Monday Lafferty's court-appointed attorney, Richard Johnson, said he planned to file the appeal requesting the Utah Supreme Court to review a decision that declared "the defendant is not 'incompetent to proceed.'"

Lafferty is not competent to proceed to trial, Johnson said.

Lafferty still wants to defend himself but, if allowed to do so, would probably not do anything in his defense, Johnson said.

Lafferty and his brother, Dan Lafferty, have insisted on defending themselves since their August arrest. Dan, who was convicted in January, was allowed to represent himself although he was assigned "advisory council." Whether the same will be allowed for Ron Lafferty is still a question.

Wayne Watson, chief Utah County deputy attorney, said he believes an impartial jury can be found although it may be "a little more difficult" than it was in the trial of Dan Lafferty. "It may take an extra day or two," said Watson. Jury selection in Dan's trial took two days.

In Monday's decision, Judge J. Robert Bullock ruled Lafferty could understand the proceedings and the punishment specified, making him competent to stand trial. Bullock ordered Lafferty to remain in the Utah State Hospital where he has been since a December suicide attempt in the Utah County jail.

Lafferty is accused of the July 24 slayings of his sister-in-law Brenda Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter Erica Lafferty. The victims were found with their throats slashed in their American Fork duplex.

An alleged revelation received by Lafferty called for the "removal" of the victims and two other individuals.

In addition to the murder charges, Lafferty faces two charges each of criminal conspiracy and aggravated burglary.

Dan Lafferty is presently serving two life sentences, four five-year-to-life sentences and four sentences not to exceed five years in the Utah State Prison. Bullock ruled all the sentences to run concurrently.

Congressional delegates spend nearly 4 hours with Mikhail Gorbachev

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev spent nearly four hours with an American congressional delegation Wednesday, twice the usual time allotted, and said it was time U.S.-Soviet relations emerged from a dangerous "ice age."

The time has come for talking, the Soviet leader said, and one of the Americans predicted he would be a "very formidable adversary" in a summit with President Reagan.

Members of the first U.S. delegation to meet Gorbachev since the funeral of Konstantin U. Chernenko, whom he replaced March 11, said they brought the new leader a letter from Reagan. They would not discuss its contents.

The congressmen said Gorbachev reaffirmed his interest in a summit, but did not say when it might be possible.

On Sunday Gorbachev said the Soviet Union was freezing deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe until November. The White House said that was public relations.

Tass, the official Soviet news agency, quoted Gorbachev as telling the delegation:

"The time is such now that people shaping the policy of the two countries should by all means converse with one another. The world situation is disquieting, even dangerous, and a kind of ice age is being observed in relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States. At least this was so until the most recent time."

House speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told a news conference the meeting covered arms control, human rights, trade, regional issues and cultural exchange.

"From our talks, it is apparent that real opportunities for expanded trade and cultural contacts exist."

Gorbachev received O'Neill, a Democrat from Massachusetts; House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois; Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill.; and Silvio Conte, R-Mass.

They met in the Communist Party chief's private quarters on the third floor of the huge yellow office building just inside the Kremlin wall adjacent to Red Square.

The four are the senior members of a 13-man House delegation visiting the Soviet Union.

O'Neill said the meeting lasted three hours and 43 minutes, which is nearly double the time Kremlin visitors usually get. Its length underscored the emphasis the new leadership is putting on U.S.-Soviet relations.

The Soviet press reported Gorbachev's statement on arms control the day the delegation arrived and Tass said Wednesday that Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and George P. Shultz, the American secretary of state, would meet in Vienna May 14. Both will be there for ceremonies marking the return of Austria's sovereignty in 1955.

State television broadcast a lengthy report on the meeting between Gorbachev, 54, and the congressmen, including a videotape of the preliminaries.

Asked about the nuclear-freeze statement, O'Neill said: "I like to believe (Gorbachev) was speaking his mind, his heart and his feeling for world peace. I don't want to look at it as propaganda."

Michel said Gorbachev mentioned the cool White House response, and "his characterization was that we rejected his proposal out of hand."

He said Gorbachev was waiting for a "full response" to his last letter to Reagan on a summit, adding that the response was not in the letter delivered Wednesday.

"In taking my measure of the man, I certainly have to agree with the speaker (O'Neill) that he could be a very formidable adversary," Michel said.

Infant too small to get into hospital

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A doctor who refused to admit a premature infant because her one-pound birth weight made her a "living abortion" now says he would have accepted her had he known her actual weight was closer to two pounds.

Dr. Ken Henderson, director of the neonatal unit at the Medical Center of Central Georgia in Macon, refused to admit the infant Tuesday because of his policy against accepting infants weighing less than 500 grams, approximately 1.1 pounds.

Jana Kyle Cleveland, born 13 weeks prematurely at Peach County Hospital in Fort Valley, was taken instead to the Medical College of Georgia at Augusta, where she was in critical but stable condition

Wednesday.

Henderson said he refused to admit the infant because doctors at Peach County had estimated her weight to be about one pound. When she was weighed after arriving in Augusta, doctors found her actual weight to be 760 grams, or one and two-thirds pounds.

Countdown begins for space shuttle

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The two-day countdown for space shuttle Discovery's mission with Sen. Jake Garn aboard began Wednesday, as its sister ship Challenger moved into an assembly hangar to set up a launch doubleheader just 17 days apart.

"We got off to a slow start this year, so it's important that we achieve these two launches in a short period to get us back on a one-a-month launch schedule," said Mark Hess of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Kennecott officials want to reopen

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Kennecott officials have a "sincere desire" to resume operations at the Utah Copper Division and representatives from the company and union want to reach an agreement, says U.S. Rep. David Monson, R-Utah.

However, Monson said the company continues its stand that it has to reduce costs and solve other external problems that have damaged the industry.

Monson met privately Tuesday with Kennecott president G. Frank Joklik to discuss problems in the copper industry. He met with union leaders the previous day in his Washington office.

The company announced March 29 it will close its Utah operation and lay off 2,220 people by this fall. Joklik blamed union wages and unrestricted copper imports as the main reasons the plant was closed.

Following the meeting Joklik said he and Monson discussed a proposed bill to impose a 15-cent-a-pound tariff on copper imported by countries that refuse to curtail their production.

Fishing boat yields big marijuana crop

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 32 tons of marijuana, with an estimated value of up to $195 million, was discovered on a battered fishing boat after it was stopped for a routine safety check, federal authorities reported Wednesday.

Reagan ready to meet Gorbachev

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — In an abrupt shift, the White House said Wednesday that President Reagan is ready now for a get-acquainted "meeting" with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but that a problem-solving "summit" would require more preparation and must offer the promise of success.

For weeks top administration officials have used the terms "summit" and "meeting" interchangeably. Robert C. McFarlane, Reagan's national security adviser, sought to put an end to that practice as he briefed reporters at a hotel 25 miles from the vacationing president's ranch.

The administration's sudden insistence on a distinction between the two terms clearly was an attempt to dampen expectations of real improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations flowing from a Reagan-Gorbachev conference.

Reading a written statement before television cameras, McFarlane said, "The president has stressed that he would welcome a meeting with the general secretary. We would also welcome a summit at the proper time and as the culmination of an extended dialogue which has produced tangible accomplishment."

"There is no predicting how long this process could take," he said. "It could be this year."

McFarlane said Reagan was ready for a get-acquainted meeting with Gorbachev on short notice but played down the likelihood that would occur in the near future.

The national security adviser said, "The president believes that the climate of the relationship is such as to justify a meeting now and for the foreseeable future, absent any dramatic change in Soviet attitudes."

He said there would not have to be a specific agenda for a meeting.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said a Reagan-Gorbachev meeting in New York would be likely this fall if the Soviet leader attended the opening of the U.N. General Assembly. "It would be my best guess" that they would meet then, the official said.

Any conference — meeting or summit — would have to offer the prospect of a serious exchange of views and not give Gorbachev a propaganda forum, the official added. In weighing whether to agree to a meeting or summit, the United States will take into account the tone of Soviet rhetoric and of the Geneva arms negotiations, the official said.

Headaches go on after graduation

By TOD SANDERS
Senior Reporter

For most BYU students, getting through school is an arduous ordeal in itself. But earning a degree can often lead to further headaches and struggles when trying to find a job.

For many, the usually-difficult process of finding employment in their chosen field can be rife with interview-induced anxiety and discouragement.

According to Wayne Hansen, director of job placement at BYU, the degree of difficulty and stress in finding jobs depends on which career the student has been trained to go into.

"There is a fairly significant difference, depending on the student's major, in finding a job," he said. "There are a lot of employers who come seeking students with backgrounds in accounting, business, education, technology and engineering. But there is not a lot of campus traffic for other majors."

Hansen said most students who look for jobs through the Placement Center are optimistic about finding employment because a majority of them have a major they know will provide them with job opportunities. But the pressures they face are there, nonetheless, according to Hansen.

"The pressure starts for students after they have been searching for a while, but still have not been able to find a job," he said. "But it doesn't affect most of them because they usually will at least have had some offers."

Just as degrees in certain majors provide for different job opportunities, the challenges and struggles BYU students face vary according to the field. But there are some common denominators, such as trying to juggle schoolwork while interviewing for jobs, and, in many cases, having a family to support.

Dave Martin, a senior from Fort Worth, Texas, majoring in accounting, said the main difficulty in finding a job was trying to keep up on schoolwork while going through a battery of interviews.

"I had a pretty easy time of it when it came to actually getting a job," he said. "But the process was difficult. The on-campus and office interviews took a lot of time away from my schoolwork. It became nerve-racking because I got worried about school and also making a good impression in my interviews."

Greg Conk, a senior from Anaheim, Calif., majoring in design engineering technology, said the competition for job interviews among fellow students was the major pressure in finding a job.

"The students in my major have always been friendly and helpful to one another, but that attitude changed when it became time to find jobs," he said. "If one person finds out about job interviews, there is no way that he is going to tell anyone else about it."

Conk said companies in his field usually come to campus with the intent of interviewing 10 students, but there are often 50 or 60 people vying for the 10 spots.

"There is a lot of pressure to get interviews," he said. "The main pressure is going down to the Placement Center two or three times a day to find out when companies are coming to make sure you get on the interview list. If you are not there within ten minutes from the time they post the schedule, you are not going to get an interview."

Scott Nelson, a senior from Mesa, Ariz., majoring in economics, said the chief pressure of job hunting came from competing with so many students who have comparable abilities and qualities.

Correction

The names of two women involved in a car accident in the Canyon Glen area of Provo Canyon Tuesday were incorrectly reported to The Daily Universe.

Margie Jean Clyde and Wendy McPhie were incorrectly named as Judy Clyde and Wendy McDee. Clyde was still listed in serious condition and McPhie was listed as "very critical" Wednesday.

The two were traveling west on Provo Canyon Road when the driver apparently lost control of the vehicle, which plunged over the north embankment and struck a tree. They were taken to Utah Valley Regional Medical Center.

Aryan supremists advocate overthrow of U.A. government

By DANIEL BILLIN
Senior Reporter

Editor's Note: This is the second part of a three-part series.

"We have decided to raise the sword against ZOG, knowing full well the consequences and that perhaps we seal our own fate."

So reads a letter attacking the "Zionist Occupational Government (ZOG)" of the United States. The letter was discovered after last week's arrest of a leader of The Order, an anti-black, anti-Jewish group dedicated to the violent overthrow of the U.S. government.

The Order is one of the most extreme exponents of "Identity," a religious philosophy that embraces segregation as a divine commandment and preaches that Aryans are God's chosen people and Jews are the children of the devil.

While most of the many varied identity organizations limit themselves to rhetoric, the members of The Order have taken up arms to fight against what they call a "Jew-controlled, alien occupation government."

A string of violent crimes attributed to The Order during the past five months has drawn the FBI, Secret Service, U.S. Marshalls Service, IRS, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the Bureau of Prisons into a nationwide investigation of right-wing violence.

Members of The Order are suspects in the Denver murder of a Jewish radio-show host, bank and armored car robberies in Washington and California, the bombing of a Boise synagogue, three shoot-outs with the police and FBI and a widespread counterfeiting operation.

FBI Director William Webster appeared April 4 before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee to describe white-supremacy groups such as Aryan Nations and its offshoot, The Order.

"I personally regard them as more dangerous than the Klan groups from which they emanated," Webster said.

The Order differs from other white-supremacy groups in that The Order has attempted to trigger armed conflict other groups usually only talk about.

In spite of its extremism (thirteen members of The Order signed a "declaration of war" last November), other neo-Nazi leaders have refused to condemn The Order.

In an Associated Press report, Aryan Nations leader Richard Butler was quoted as saying: "I'll back any man who says he's for the preservation of our race and culture."

"I believe they jumped the gun. I still agree with them philosophically," Butler said.

A computer bulletin board maintained by Aryan Nations lists its members that have been arrested or are being sought in connection with the crimes and describes them as "strong, trustworthy, honest" men who are being "hounded day and night by the servants of (Satan)."

Another item eulogizes Robert J. Matthews, 31, killed by the FBI in a two-day siege of an Order hide-out in Washington and announces a special memorial to be held in his honor on April 20.

To date, more than 20 Order members and their associates have been arrested on a wide range of charges that include robbery, counterfeiting, possession of illegal weapons and harboring fugitives.

Bruce Carroll Pierce, one of the leaders of The Order, was driving a van filled with weapons and explosives when he was arrested March 26 in Georgia.

Two Alabama men have been indicted in Utah for aiding a fugitive wanted in connection with a California armored car robbery. Mark Frank Jones and Michael Stanley Norris are charged with transporting Richard Joseph Scutari in Cedar City, Utah, on Dec. 9.

Neither the U.S. Attorney's office nor the FBI will say whether the suspects were in contact with Utah members of Aryan Nations.

The February Intelligence Report of the Southern Poverty Law Center's Klanwatch says groups like The Order want "final solutions, not Jim Crow segregation." It is not surprising that Klan and Nazi leaders would be forced to initiate hostilities themselves if their race war was too slow in coming, says the report.

Irwin Suall, of the B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League, compares The Order to the Weather Underground, saying, "People ask, 'How are a couple dozen kooks going to overthrow the U.S. government?' But that's not what they think of themselves."

Buck Revell, assistant FBI director in charge of criminal investigations, told Newsweek that right-wing terrorists are "probably even more violent than left-wing terrorists and possibly a greater threat to the law-enforcement community."

An even more ominous comment on the recent violence comes from Keith Gilbert, the leader of the Restored Church of Jesus Christ, another break-off of Butler's Aryan Nations.

Gilbert, who spent time in prison for plotting to detonate 1,400 pounds of dynamite during a Martin Luther King speech, told The Universe: "I think a lot of people are beginning to realize that we're telling the truth and that we mean what we say."

Veterans called to unite to save administration for small businessmen

By STEVEN J. HANSEN
Senior Reporter

An alert is sounding for all veterans to contact their congressmen in an effort to persuade Capitol Hill to save the Small Business Administration (SBA).

The warning comes just after the leadership of the Senate and the White House came to an agreement to include the elimination of the SBA in an overall budget compromise. The proposal will go to the floor in two weeks.

Utah veterans who rely on the SBA can take note that Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, supports remodeling the agency into an information and loan source for new, small businesses and businesses initiated by women and minorities, said Gina Rose, press secretary for the senator.

With respect to veterans, Ina Robbins, veterans' coordinator at BYU, said President Reagan's proposed cut of the SBA would mean the end of help for veterans interested in opening up a small business.

"Direct and guaranteed loans and management assistance for veterans are at an all time high. Taking away that resource would be disastrous for tens of thousands of veterans who benefit from from the agency's programs," Robbins said.

With respect to the general public, the SBA was responsible for loaning $39.9 million to 249 Utahns. But if the Utah Valley figure of loans awarded small business enterprisers is indicative of Utah, the SBA loans make up only 10 to 15 percent of small business loans.

So the question is posed of whether the elimination of the SBA will drastically affect Utah and its veterans. According to the vice president of First Security Bank of Provo, mixing the SBA will not have a great impact on Utah Valley. His reason: the majority of small business loan applicants go directly through the bank and sidestep the agency.

If the SBA is cut, outstanding loans will be transferred to the Department of Treasury, while appendages of the agency (Office of Advocacy, Procurement Assistance and Small Business Innovation and Research) will be handed to the Department of Commerce.

But the agency still has a fighting chance to survive. Although SBA critics point out a 25 percent default rate of its direct loans, the agency's accumulated 460,000 loans boast of a relatively small loss rate of 5 percent, said SBA spokesman Jim Jennings.

First Presidency calls 6 mission presidents

The First Presidency of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has announced the appointments of six new mission presidents and the formation of six new missions.

Wendell J. Ashton has been called to preside over the England London Mission. Others called include Mervyn B. Arnold, Costa Rica San Jose Mission; Elijah A. Cardon, Germany Hamburg Mission; Victor M. Cerda, Mexico Torreon Mission; David E. Sorensen, Canada Halifax Mission; and G. Perrin Walker, Belgium Brussels Mission.

Ashton has served as publisher of the Desert News for the past seven years. He served a mission for the LDS Church in the British Isles and has served as a regional representative and a stake president.

Arnold is a native of Salt Lake City and a BYU graduate. He served as a missionary in Mexico and as a stake high counselor.

Cardon is from Safford, Ariz., and served a mission in Switzerland. He is also active in civic affairs. Cerda has served as a missionary, bishop, temple worker and a stake high counselor. Sorensen is a U.S. Army veteran and has served in the LDS Church as a missionary, bishop and stake high counselor.

Walker is a graduate of BYU and the University of Chicago Law School. He served as a missionary in France and as a bishop and stake president.

The new missions are as follows: California Santa Rosa, Ghana Accra, Jamaica Kingston, Indonesia Jakarta, Brazil Brasilia and Peru Trujillo.

Student places high in national math contest

A BYU student placed 13th out of 1887 undergraduate competitors from 350 colleges and universities in the United States and Canada in this year's Putnam Mathematical Competition, which is sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America.

Wayne Aitken, a senior from Huntington Beach, Calif., majoring in mathematics, received the highest ranking ever reached by a BYU student on the exam.

The exam consists of two three-hour sessions which have six very difficult questions. Vencil R. Skarda, a professor of mathematics at BYU, the administrator of the exam and coach to the students, said it is a very rigorous exam.

"Some of the top students in the country take the exam and yet only half of them got one problem right. Nobody got all of the 12 questions right," he said. The highest score was 11 out of 12, and Aitken got six questions correct.

Skarda said the exam is to test cleverness and the ability to spot relationships.

Tests on food processing to be conducted in space

By NEIL BAIR
Senior Reporter

There will be a lot of modern technology in the food industry in the near future, according to Dr. Clayton S. Huber, chairman of the Department of Food Science and Nutrition.

Huber, a contract scientist at the Johnson Space Center in Houston from 1968-75, worked on the food packaging and selection for the astronauts of the Gemini, Apollo and Skylab space missions, so he has had an extensive background in food technology.

"On the space flights there are limitations on such things as space and weight of the food," Huber said. "The challenge in the space program was to give the astronauts something good within the restrictions."

Much of the processes used for food in space travel are being tested for use on earth. A system of food eradication is currently being tested for foods available in public supermarkets. Large doses of eradication were used on several of the Apollo missions to rid the food of gamma and other short-energy rays. He said small doses can sterilize food.

Huber said a small dose of eradication can also do such things as inhibit the growth of sprouts in potatoes and can extend the shelf life of many fruits and vegetables up to two or three weeks. Huber expects a regulation to be placed on the small dosage of eradication within the next year, legalizing its use.

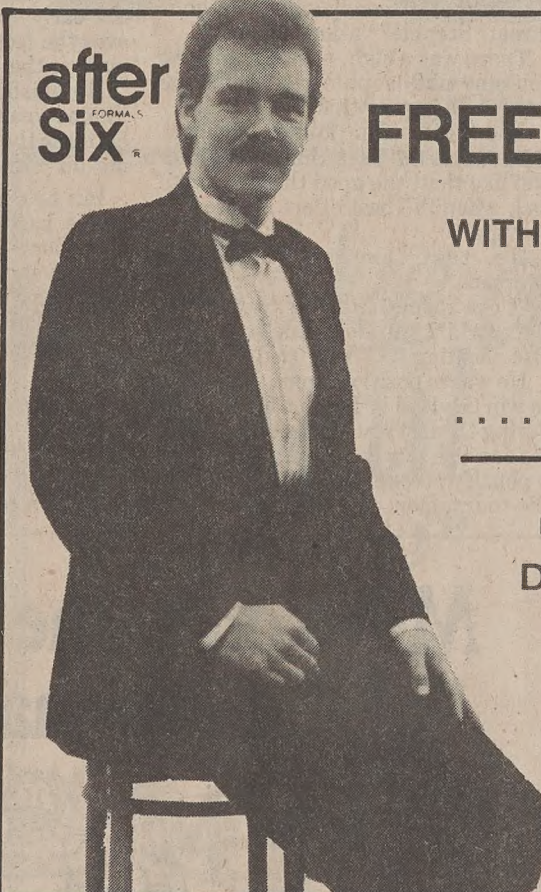

Huber said there is also much being done with regards to the meat and fish industry. He said use of the pollock fish caught in Alaska can produce artificial crab legs, shrimp and lobster. By a washing procedure called "surimi," scientists remove color and taste from the fish and inject a new gel formation, taste and texture of the desired product.

This same procedure can be used to cleanly remove bones, fat and other undesirable tissue in meat. Huber said the improvement can be done to hamburger, steak, chicken and even chicken and turkey necks. Procedures such as surimi are now used to make turkey rolls.

"We will see a lot more of this in the future," he said. "What we're trying to do is to make efficient use of all our resources."

Many of the experiments done with food are taking place in the Space Shuttle Challenger program.

Cougars dump T-Birds 12-4

Y baseballers avenge first loss to split doubleheader

BYU baserunner Dirk Thompson slides into second base, as an SUCS infielder attempts the tag. The Cougars split their Wednesday doubleheader, losing the first game 15-8 and winning the second 12-4.

By NEIL BAIR
Senior Reporter

Sophomore pitcher Heber Crockett earned his first win of the season and Jeff Brown drove in three runs with a home run as BYU downed Southern Utah State 12-4 to gain a split of its doubleheader against the Thunderbirds yesterday in Provo.

The first game saw SUCS pitcher Dave Draper silence the Cougar bats to give the Thunderbirds a 15-8 victory. The split gave the Cougars a 22-18 record for the season. BYU will next host Northern Colorado in a twinbill Friday at noon.

The Cougars had 16 hits to back the nine-hit pitching of Crockett, who gave up four runs on nine hits to go the distance for the Cougars. He also struck out eight batters and walked just two to even his record at 1-1.

After dropping the first game, the Cougars started off quickly in the second game. Following a two-run first inning, back-to-back solo home runs by Clark Clifford and Blake Jensen off losing pitcher Kelly Lund gave BYU a 4-0 lead after two innings.

Brown's three-run shot over the centerfield fence highlighted a six-run sixth inning for the Cougars and gave them an 11-3 lead. The blast came after run-scoring singles by Keith Harrison and Mike Littlewood had given BYU an 8-3 advantage. Following Brown's homer, Gordie Dotson doubled to center and scored on BYU's seventh hit of the inning, a two-out single by Stu Adams, to finish off the scoring for the Cougars.

"Crockett really gave us a lift after we lost the first game," said BYU coach Gary Pullins following the game. "Before today, he hadn't pitched in two weeks, so we're very pleased with his effort today."

A towering three-run homer by Floyd Armstrong and a two-run shot by Mike Federico in a five-run sixth inning keyed the victory for SUCS. Draper struck out six to improve his record to 3-3. Junior Dave Jenkins' record fell to 0-3 as he faced just eight batters on the day, being shelled for five runs, as SUCS led 5-1 after two innings.

But BYU began a rally in the third. With one out, a single by Gary Schoonover and consecutive walks to Mark Inouye and Gary Cooper loaded the bases for BYU. However, a sure single off the bat of cleanup hitter Brett Varoz hit Inouye on the hand and stunted the threat. BYU salvaged the inning on a two-run single by Brian Carroll to cut the lead to 5-3.

After fourth-inning home runs by Jim Kotkas and Rob Palm made it 8-3, a double by Kotkas in the fifth made the score 10-3, putting the game out of reach.

Tulsa coach takes Arkansas position

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas Athletic Director Frank Broyles says he talked to basketball coaches from coast to coast and border before choosing as Eddie Sutton's successor Nolan Richardson, who coached at Tulsa University, just 90 miles from Fayetteville.

Richardson, who becomes the first black head coach in the Southwest Conference, compiled a 118-37 record at Tulsa. He took the Golden Hurricane to the NCAA tournament three times and the National Invitation Tournament once, winning it his first year.

Kite looks to win first major title in Masters tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Stephanie Kite, age 2½ at the time, was sitting on her daddy's lap explaining one of her adventures.

This one involved a piece of candy that stuck in her throat and necessitated Stephanie being up-ended and slapped on the back.

"Did that ol' candy slip down your throat, Stephanie?" asked daddy.

There was a sigh, a shrug, and the solemn, philosophic reply: "Some days they just do that."

And daddy Tom knows all about those days, the days things just happen like that, the good things turn to bad, when the best effort is not good enough.

He, too, takes a philosophic approach.

"I can shoot 67. There's nothing in the world I can do about somebody else shooting 65," Kite said.

He was in position, some years ago, to win the Hall of Fame Classic. But, during the last round, his ball moved. No one else saw it. Kite did. He called a penalty stroke on himself. He lost the tournament by one stroke.

Last year, Kite was in position, as he so often is, to win the Masters. But Ben Crenshaw holed a 65-foot putt and Kite hit a 7-iron shot into Rae's Creek on No. 12.

"People think I blew it when I went in the water on 12. That's not so. I lost because I missed some crucial putts in the early rounds. I have no control over the fact that Ben made a 65-foot putt on the 10th hole," Kite said.

He finished sixth, the eighth time in nine years he had placed sixth or better in the Masters, including a runner-up position in 1983.

But he's never won a major.

The hard-working little man has done almost everything else. He's won seven titles and more than $2.3 million in a 14-season career. He won the Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average on the Tour in both 1981 and 1982.

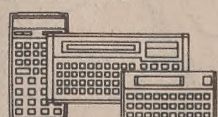

Perhaps his most remarkable achievement was in 1981 when he finished 10th or better 21 times in 26 starts. But that record became something of a burden.

Watson ready for Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The time is now. The Masters is at hand. And Tom Watson, who has a history of rising to the occasion in golf's major events, is ready.

"I've had a couple of chances, at Bay Hill and Las Vegas," Watson said after a final practice session Wednesday over the rolling hills and extremely fast greens of Augusta National. "I didn't have a good West Coast. But I've had a few good streaks. "I hit the ball well today. I'm putting well. Overall, I'm ready to win."

Jazz may announce plan to stay in Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah Jazz officials may announce today the National Basketball Association franchise will remain in Salt Lake City, team owner Sam Battistone says.

"I think everything is very favorable right now and we're going on that basis," Battistone said in a copyright story published Wednesday in the Deseret News.

Battistone has imposed a Tuesday deadline for local investors to put together a package to pay off the club's $6 million debt and give it at least $2 million more for operating capital or else the club will be sold to the highest bidder.

Battistone already has an $18 million offer to move the team to Florida, and a California group is interested in moving the team to Orange County.

Team officials also said they want a new lease on the Salt Palace, the arena where home games are played.

Utah car dealer Larry H. Miller has put together an $8 million package to buy half interest in the club, and Miller scheduled two meetings Wednesday afternoon to finalize the deal.

"I feel like those two meetings have the potential to wrap it up," Miller said.

One of the contingencies Miller attached to his offer was that the team negotiate a better lease on the Salt Palace.

On Tuesday Utah Gov. Norm Bangerter, Salt Lake City Mayor Ted Wilson and

Salt Lake County Commission Chairman Mike Stewart pledged to work out financial details so the team could remain in Utah.

The three public officials said they are willing to give financial aid to the Salt Palace, owned and operated by the county, to make it "more financially secure."

Jazz President David Checketts said the three government officials assured him "the lease will be put back in favorable terms with the rest of the NBA."

Stewart said, "If the Salt Palace is financially secure, then we can look at all the leases."

An International Hockey League franchise also operates at the Salt Palace.

LA beats Astros behind solo blasts

(AP) — Ken Landreaux and Pedro Guerrero belted solo home runs and reliever Steve Howe, making his first appearance in the major leagues since serving a suspension for the 1984 season because of cocaine use, got the final out for a save Wednesday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 5-4.

In other Wednesday games, Baltimore crushed Texas 7-1, Detroit destroyed Cleveland 8-1, Montreal beat Cincinnati 4-1 and San Diego whipped San Francisco 3-0.

Howe, who last pitched in the majors in September 1983 before being suspended by then-Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, entered the game with two outs in the ninth and a runner on first. Jose Cruz lined out to center field on Howe's first pitch to end the game.

Houston had pulled within 5-4 in the ninth when Kevin Bass drew a leadoff walk from Ken Howell and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Phil Garner off Tom Niedenfuer.

Los Angeles starter Jerry Reuss, who had lined a two-run single in the sixth inning, took a five-hitter and a 5-0 lead into the eighth. But he left after giving up two more hits and Howell took over.

Howell threw a wild pitch, allowing one run to score, and Alan Ashby cracked a two-run single to make it 5-3.

A single by Guerrero and walks to Mike Marshall and Sid Bream loaded the bases in the sixth, and Reuss delivered his two-run single.

In Baltimore, the Orioles won their second game of the season, already equaling last season's victories produced in 12 games.

Vikings, Browns both want Kosar

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Both the Minnesota Vikings and the Cleveland Browns have engineered trades aimed at acquiring University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, and the Vikings say they will lose no time in trying for an agreement.

"We've been saying all along that he's been at the top of our list, and now we are in a position to negotiate with him," Minnesota General Manager Mike Lynn said Tuesday night.

"We will be talking with his agent and his father very soon."

However, Kosar was said to be contemplating a strategy that would put him with the Browns.

Vikings announce first

The Vikings made their announcement first, saying they had reached an agreement with Houston for the Oilers' first-round pick, No. 2 overall, in the April 30 National Football League draft. But then the Browns said they had made a deal with the Buffalo Bills for their selection, the first in the supplemental draft, if one is necessary.

Kosar could not be reached for comment, but his father, Bernie Sr., said at his Boardman, Ohio, home, "We'd like to hear Minnesota's story because they have the rights now."

"Minnesota is an option we'd consider," the elder Kosar added. "But we know Cleveland is very interested."

"Bernie is in a unique situation," he added. "If the league does not receive a written notification from us by Monday, day, April 15, then he is not part of the April 30 draft. That would leave us the possibility of a supplemental draft."

Bizarre possibility

Lynn described as "bizarre" the possibility of Cleveland getting Kosar in a supplemental draft.

"It is something that might have to be addressed by attorneys," Lynn added.

Kosar, who has two years of college eligibility remaining, has not informed the league that he plans to be eligible for the regular draft and has until April 15 to do so, said league spokesman Joe Browne.

A source close to Kosar said the quarterback probably would not make himself eligible until after April 30, and thus would be available in a supplemental draft.

Kosar, reared near Cleveland, has expressed a preference for playing with the Browns. His father said, "I'm a Browns fan, and my kids are Browns fans."

Kosar, as a redshirt freshman, led Miami to a national championship two seasons ago. He decided this spring to complete his coursework over the summer and pass up his remaining two years of college eligibility to turn pro.

In two seasons at Miami, Kosar set 22 school records and led the Hurricanes to a 19-6 record. The 6-foot-5, 210-pound quarterback accumulated nine 300-yard passing games and threw 40 touchdown passes.

Women hoopsters ink 4 new players

BYU women's basketball coach Courtney Leishman announced the signing of four standout high school athletes to letters of intent to play as Cougars next year.

The four players are Carrie Maxwell, a 5-foot-7 guard from Highland High School, Salt Lake City; Susan Shumway, a 6-foot center/forward from Round Valley High School, Springerville, Arizona; Fran Wynn, a 5-foot-11 guard from Carona Del Mar High School, Newport, Calif.; and Karina Zapata, a 5-foot-4 guard from Kirtland Central High School, Kirtland, New Mexico.

"All four players are fine athletes and quality people whom we'll be happy to have in our program," said Leishman of the new recruits.

All four of the athletes come out of the high school ranks with outstanding statistics. Wynn tops the group in scoring average with 23.5, while Zapata has the best shooting percentages, hitting 65 percent of her shots from the field and 80 percent from the free throw line.

Maxwell leads the group in assists, dishing out seven per outing, but the other guards are close behind, Wynn with 6.7 and Zapata with six.

Although Shumway, as the only inside player who signed with the Cougars, leads the four players with 12.1 rebounds per game, Wynn shows promise of inside play holding a 10.7 rebounding average during her senior year.

Mandrell campaigns for seatbelts

NEW YORK (AP) — Country singer Barbara Mandrell says wearing seatbelts was the only reason she and her two children survived an automobile accident last fall that killed another person.

"I love the people in this country, and I just want to beg them to have this safety by wearing a safety seatbelt," she said Tuesday on ABC's "Good Morning America."

Mandrell was planning to testify before the Tennessee Legislature, which is considering a bill that would require seatbelt use.

She said that before the accident, she "was truly a person that did not want the government telling me what to do" but that she now supports mandatory seatbelt legislation.

The entertainer was seriously injured, and the driver of the other car was killed in an accident last September in Hendersonville, a Nashville suburb.

Mandrell, 36, who is expecting her third child, spent 19 days in the hospital with a broken leg, two broken bones in her ankle, a badly injured knee and a severe concussion.

Gems set as rainbows latest news in jewelry

NEW YORK (AP) — Rainbow rings, bracelets and necklaces are the latest news in jewelry, reports Kae McCulloch, fashion director of the Jewelry Industry Council.

"Colored gemstones in graduated hues mimic the rainbow," she says. "The multicolors make a rainbow ring or necklace appropriate to wear with almost any color in your wardrobe."

Handwriting helps employers

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — More than 2,000 companies in the United States are making personnel decisions with the help of graphology, according to Barbara Harding, a graphologist.

She says that by studying written strokes, a professional can gain an insight into a person's personal traits, talents and motivations.

Organization trying to reduce world hunger

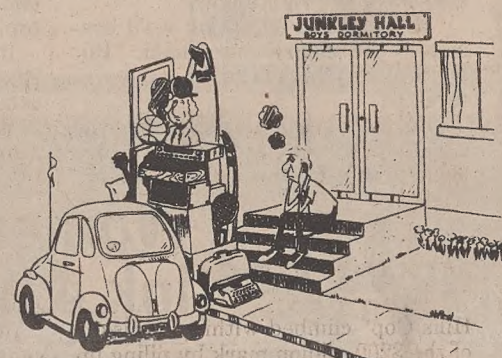

DAVIS, Calif. (AP)

— Some 40,000 children die each day from malnutrition, according to new figures from an international study released by the Meals for Millions-Freedom From Hunger Foundation.

Non-profit Meals for Millions is seeking to reduce these statistics dramatically through self-help programs it now has at work in drought-afflicted areas of Africa, as well as Asia, the Caribbean, Latin America and the United States.

Philip E. Barton, chairman of the 38-year-old foundation, recently accepted the 1984 Presidential World Without Hunger Award.

Romania's 'Hotel Dracula' features resident vampire reposing in coffin

TIHUTA PASS, Romania (AP) — Traveler, beware. Bats and wolves adorn the walls of these Transylvanian lodgings, and the hotel cook relaxes in a coffin.

Its real name is the Hotel Tihuta, but guests at the $2-million mountaintop extravaganza know it as "Hotel Dracula." White-gloved waitresses serve Polish vodka to local shepherds and the concierge's desk is on the second floor in a tower.

Radu Varareanu, the cook, is the resident vampire. He springs from a coffin to terrify tourists in the basement "torture chamber." The thrill is gone for Varareanu, who says he's done the trick so often he feels like falling asleep during the wait in the coffin.

Set in the Carpathian Mountains, 31 miles south of the Soviet border, the hotel resembles a medieval stronghold. It guards a 3,600-foot pass where crosswinds swirl among craggy peaks — and into the lobby.

Seven years in the building, the hotel opened last year, and business was not encouraging.

"The hotel is operating up to 70 percent capacity. At the beginning it was even worse," said Ioan Pasca, administrator of the 70-room, three-story hotel.

When construction was started in 1976, Romania was hoping to attract thousands of Western tourists to visit the homeland of the legendary vampire. Bram Stoker's 1897 novel is set in these mountains, but don't count on finding it in local bookstores.

The novel is banned in Romania, as are Dracula films on grounds they portray a distorted image of the real "Dracula," the 15th-century ruler Vlad the Impaler — so-named because he impaled his Turkish enemies on stakes.

Vlad is a national hero in a country that takes its history and traditions seriously, and officials are reluctant to link him with the popular Western image of the bloodsucking count.

Michael Lassel, who worked on the wall decorations, said plans to name the establishment Hotel Dracula had been vetoed by the authorities. But other cliches are encouraged.

"The Dracula issue offers everybody a loophole of a dream," Lassel said.

Visitors may spend the night in a coffin if they want. They can also order "Elixir Dracula," a heady snifter of plum brandy.

The portrait of a human vampire adorns a wall of the cellar where Varareanu's coffin lies, lit dimly by two flickering candles. The hotel is looking for 12 human skulls as further decoration.

Few Romanians know of the place because it is new and out of the way, located in a virgin forest on the road linking Transylvania and the northern province of Bukovina.

"But I think that in two or three years the place will be crammed," Pasca said.

Mushroom hunters look for wild morels to sell

McKEE BRIDGE, Ore. (AP) — Bill Tibbitts was on his hands and knees under a canopy of manzanita, his cheek practically touching the dry white oak leaves that covered the soft wet ground, his eyes searching for the elusive outline of a wild morel mushroom.

"We always pick uphill," Tibbitts said. "You get down on ground level and look up the hill and you can see them. They'll stick up."

At the base of a manzanita bush, next to some western shooting star wildflowers, Tibbitts spotted the distinctive cone-shaped outline and convoluted surface of a morel.

He took his knife, carefully cut the stem just above the ground and put the prize in his bucket. In two days it would be at a restaurant like Le Pavillon in Washington, the Savoy Restaurant in the Weston Oaks Hotel in Houston or Joe's Restaurant in Reading, Pa.

"When you find a patch of nice morels, it gets your adrenalin going," Tibbitts said. "I imagine it would be like catching a nice steelhead or a salmon."

Tibbitts cuts red cedar for shakes in the coastal forests around Coos Bay in the winter. But in the spring, he and neighbor Bob McArthur head for the Rogue River National Forest to hunt and buy morels.

In the morning they scour the south-facing slopes that have the variegated shade provided by the dusty-green manzanita.

"It's like the old man said. They grow where they grow," Tibbitts said.

In the afternoon they drive to tiny communities like McKee Bridge, Ruch and Gold Hill and set a state-certified scale on the tailgate of the green four-wheel-drive Blazer.

Next to it goes a sign that tells local mushroom hunters they are paying $8 a pound for top-quality morels.

McArthur and Tibbitts look over every morel, cutting out discolorations, looking for bugs.

There is a false morel that can make you sick, so Tibbitts looks at each one to be sure the crown connects at the base, indicating it is good to eat.

Last year, Tibbitts, his wife, Lorna, and McArthur sold 3,000 pounds of chanterelles through their company, Forest Fresh Products. This is their first year selling morels. They hope to grow to the point where the business is full time.

"Every small business started in a library," Tibbitts said. "I went to the library and got out a copy of Gourmet magazine. I looked at the ads for restaurants and just called them."

The mushrooms are packed in ventilated Styrofoam boxes and shipped air freight, getting to their destinations in just two days.

Patrick Wheeler, executive chef for the Weston Oaks Hotel in Houston, is buying 30 pounds of morels from them.

"The smaller ones, we'll take and saute them with a little bit of shallots, season with salt and pepper, and finish them off with a little cream and white wine," he said.

"The bigger ones, we'll stuff with chicken farce, which is ground chicken, cream, pistachios, truffles and egg whites. We'll use a light cream sauce, with shallot, salt and pepper, and a white wine reduction."

At Le Pavillon in Washington, Chef Yannick Cam stuffs them with a mousse of foie gras, duck and pigeon breast and a pimento puree. Then they are poached in a court bouillon.

It's certainly not the best mushroom flavorwise," he said. "The one thing is they can be stuffed, so you can do many more things with it."

At Joe's Restaurant in Reading, Pa., which specializes in wild mushrooms, owner and chef Jack Czarnecki stuffs morels with a mousse of pheasant, watercress and cream and uses morel extract for sauces.

'Beverly Hills Cop' piles up money

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Beverly Hills Cop" climbed within a whisker of the $200-million mark by piling up another $3 million over the Easter weekend.

Paramount's Eddie Murphy action comedy came in fifth at the box office over the weekend but boosted its total gross to $199.8 million.

The revenue leader for the second week in a row was Warner Bros. "Police Academy 2, Their First Assignment," with $8.6 million in receipts.

"Mask," starring Cher, remained in second place with $4.5 million. The movie grossed $20 million in its first five weeks.

"The Last Dragon," in third place, took in $3.4 million.

In fourth place was "The Care Bears Movie," a Goldwyn release that grossed $3.3 million.

In sixth place was "Porky's Revenge," a 20th Century-Fox release that collected $2.6 million over the weekend for a three-week total of $15.4 million.

"Friday the 13th, Part V, A New Beginning," dropped from third place to seventh place this past weekend.

Paramount's "Witness," starring Harrison Ford, improved its standing in the box office race form 10th to eighth place. The film has grossed almost $50 million in nine weeks.

"Return of the Jedi" stayed strong in its second weekend of re-release, roping in $2 million. The 20th Century-Fox film dropped from sixth place to ninth at the box office.

In 10th place is Academy Award-winning "Amadeus" from Orion.

To protect you, calls charged to your number will have to meet with your approval.

We want to protect you from fraud or mistakenly having long distance calls billed to your number. So we require verification on all pay phone calls billed to a third number. That means if your number is to be billed, an operator will ask either you or someone at your home or business to approve each call when it's made. If the line is busy or nobody answers, the operator won't complete the call.

If you place a third number call yourself, you do have billing alternatives. You can call collect or pay for it in coin. The fastest, easiest way, however, is to charge the call to a Mountain Bell Calling Card.*

But should someone want to charge a call to you, we'll make sure it meets with your approval. That way, calls you don't want to pay for aren't made at your expense.

SUMMER WORK

Who says you have to be poor while in college? And who says you have to work? Part-time jobs all year long while taking a tough class schedule. Our people average $400/wk. for the summer, and with good money like that most of them do not have to worry about working the rest of the year. They just study and enjoy their college experience. If your job this summer will not cover tuition, a few car or even a good social life, you should call us. 373-4663. Ask for Mr. Terry.

EARN A LOT of money fast during summer break & after by selling inexpensive 15-string musical instrument. Any popular countrywestern & religious hymns can be played on it instantly by anyone without any practice. It's a miracle. It's imported from Belgium. New in this country. Can be sold anywhere in the US & Canada. It sells itself. For more information & a demonstration call 801-466-3963 or write Rustie Maker, 1338 Atkin Ave., SLC, UT 84106.

IANUF. REPS: Need self-motivated students to work part-time in hometown area. Contact Computer Stores with our line of accessories. 20% commission on all orders & reorders. 377-4280.

OPINION

Settle all bills, accounts before you leave Provo

The anticipation of spring and summer holidays is evident on campus.

Bodies of sun worshippers dot the landscape. Music blares from apartment windows giving rhythm to sweaty basketball games on the nearby court. Frisbees and footballs whiz in between pedestrians; summer fashions have again brought their blaze of pinks and blues and yellows and white to brighten up our days. Last minute plans for holidays with graduating roommates and other friends are excitedly whispered about in the library while trying to study chapters 13 through 19 of physical science.

UNIVERSE OPINION

And the end of the school year is just around the corner. The annual migration of students leaving Provo will again leave its mark on this community: students defaulting on checks, leaving unpaid telephone bills and parking tickets, not returning library books and abandoning filthy apartments.

This is the one part of spring that many residents of Provo do not look forward to.

While many students are only temporary citizens of Provo, it is essential that they show that they are mature, responsible adults and complete unfinished business before leaving.

Students complain during the school year about the stringent controls local merchants and landlords impose on them.

This seems to be because some students have been irresponsible in the past, and thus community members in Provo who have frequent contact with them have taken a strong stand to protect themselves.

Summer vacation should be a time for fun in the sun and pursuit of other interests. It should not be marred by thoughtlessness, carelessness and total disregard for other people.

Students must make the time to tie up loose ends before leaving town so that others following them will not incur the mistrust of local merchants and landlords.

Part of school life is surviving deadlines, alarms, roommates

"Enjoy, these are the best years of your life."

My hand frantically searches for the elusive button responsible for that sleep-shattering racket. Blurred memories of popcorn, laughter and late night conversations cloud my mind as the fluorescent numbers scream out that I'm soon to be late for class.

Water ranging from cold to colder tells me my five roommates weren't late getting up. Once out of the shower I go through the ritual of roommates — smile and say hello to one roommate, be sure not to say good morning to roommate No. 2 until after she's had breakfast, ask roommate No. 3 how her "serious talk" went the night before and say goodbye to Nos. 4 and 5 as they calmly walk out to class — on time.

Nothing to wear. How do you like that, a whole closet of nothing. I'm going to have to find some time to do a load (or three) of wash.

My professor lectures on the importance of being on time as I walk in 20 minutes late gasping for breath and sweating after fighting the '84 Porsche for the only parking space within two miles of campus . . . and losing.

Class is over, and I run out to fulfill my "things to do" list that I wrote up during class since I couldn't understand what the teacher was talking about anyway.

1. Present for Cindy's birthday. Okay, only three dollars to last until the weekend when Mom can transfer money into my checking account. Cindy will love a homemade card. (What's that saying about it being the thought that counts?)

Religion class. Why does it always seem the conversation slips into a discussion of repentance when I'm feeling the guiltiest about myself?

Oh my gosh, I forgot about that quiz. One hour before class, that should be enough time to get ready.

Thank goodness we can drop the lowest score. I would have done better if I'd studied instead of talked that hour, but I haven't talked to Sue in "years" and there was so much to catch up on.

Three hours in this carrel with only one chapter read — and I still don't get it. Why don't these chemistry scholars write in English?

Frozen burrito or macaroni and cheese for dinner? Better go with the burrito, it takes less time. It couldn't have taken me a half hour to make that decision.

The 6 o'clock news is a must to stay on top of world events and then the newspaper to find some story ideas for an article due next week in magazine writing.

28. Across. That was on yesterday's crossword puzzle too. How come I can never remember that one.

A couple visitors and a few phone calls later and I'm beat. There is so much left to do, but it will have to wait for tomorrow. Does everybody else always feel a step behind too?

I dig my way to my bed. I guess I'd better clean this mess up and make a pathway for my roommate so she can get to her bed too.

Pajamas, tingly teeth and a clean face . . . what a wonderful feeling. I comb out my hair. Funny thing, it's the first time all day it's looked like it's supposed to.

Where is everybody? A drink of water and a quick trip to the bathroom. Wasn't there a new roll of toilet paper just this morning?

"Hi kids!" Oh, everyone was watching M*A*S*H at the guys'. "Did I hear about . . .?" and "Did I know . . .?" and "We saw that guy you're crazy about with his girlfriend today! He said to say hi." (Go ahead, make my day.)

These are the best years of my life? Who said that anyway?

Mom called just to say she loves me. What a way to end the day. I guess I'll make it to tomorrow, things aren't so bad when you're loved.

I'd better set my alarm early to be sure I get up on time.

My hand frantically searches for the elusive button . . .

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

News from Spain

Editor: Word has reached our itching ears on this side of the Atlantic that BYU has again been the center of national attention. Although it may be old news, we want to add a footnote to the Boy George/MTV issue. Ever since we escaped the Holy Inquisition of Utah Valley our morals have gone to pot. We don't have MTV so it must be Rubens' nudes and Bosch's "Garden of Earthly Delights" at the Prado Museum. Please save us! Return the Inquisition to Spain!

Support by locals

Editor: The 1985 International Winter Special Olympic Games were recently held here in Utah and were a great success. Much of that success was due to the outstanding support of the BYU community.

As one who was responsible to recruit volunteers from Utah Valley, I would like to thank all those who unselfishly applied to serve at the Games. Because of the overwhelming response, not everyone who applied to be a volunteer had the chance to participate. However, all those who planned to help are to be commended for their generous support of a very worthwhile project.

I think it reflects very well upon the valley and the BYU community that the Special Olympics had many more volunteers than were needed.

Bicycle accident

Editor: I was involved in a bicycle accident Tuesday April 2 at 3:45 p.m. on the corner of University Avenue and 300 North in Provo.

The man who caused the accident was driving a blue Datsun or Toyota and left the scene before leaving his name and address. He probably didn't realize he had caused any damage, but he did.

If you know who this person is, please contact me.

Cheerleader tryouts

Editor: Last week I attended tryouts for the cheer squad to watch my roommate try out. I was upset with the fact that so many on-campus judges were used. However, I did not intend to do anything about this until I read the article in The Universe last Friday, commenting on how last year's squad was not guaranteed a position. I felt the student body and administration should hear another opinion.

It is impossible not to be partial to people you know and have worked with. It was psychologically intimidating for the newcomers to hear the judges continually call the returning cheerleaders by their first names.

Two of the returning cheerleaders messed up completely on their dance; however, they still made the squad for next year. Three of the cheerleaders that made the squad for next year did not do any gymnastics because of injuries. If impartial judges had been used the squad would have been judged on their abilities shown at the tryouts.

I would hope that next year off-campus judges can be used to give all a more equal opportunity. I hate to see politics so blatantly in force at the Y.

Personal choices

Editor: Let's not start the on/off campus housing war again. Wherever students want to live is their own business, and if they are happy, good for them.

In neither situation is one more mature or more "able to cope with life."

Students have made the choice as to where they want to live, whether it be on or off campus, and no one has the right to ridicule them for their decision.

Recruit for ROTC

Editor: Has Gary Woller ever considered ROTC or a career with the Army? If not, the mentality displayed in his recent Letter to the Editor would seem to reflect tremendous potential going to waste.

Your responsible comments and suggestions have provided a refreshing alternative, thoughtfully directed at an otherwise mindless community.

Who's to blame?

Editor: I was surprised that an eminent and respected scholar and musician such as Prof. Bradshaw would stoop to the mundane practice of regional bickering. Being neither eminent nor respected, I will not hesitate to take his bait and issue a response.

While I agree wholeheartedly with his conclusion that no geographic location has a copyright on lawlessness, I object to Prof. Bradshaw's insulting the driving habits of the good people of California. Assuming the results of his extremely informal survey are accurate, (and that's quite an assumption), I offer the following explanations in defense of California drivers: (a) Utahns borrowing their roommates' cars (b) Californians trying valiantly to conform with local custom; (c) northern Californians.

In truth, I believe the deplorable driving practices around campus have their source, not in the regional background of the driver, but in the driver's inattention and lack of courtesy, and the delusion apparently common among freshman that they are filming chase scenes for "Knight Rider."
